Boy there was a day, an assortment of rhymes
And waving they rode that parade for a while
And everybody knew everybody
Boy there was a day being lonely was hard
And then your attention was never enough

And I don't really know anybody in love
I don't want to know anybody in love

And now the mouth is open, grows a cancer, everybody wins
And round and round and round and settle down, settle down

I don't really know anybody in love
I don't want to know anybody in love, in love

Brand the herd of those who duplicate
And crush the wind of those who deviate
And ride the wave along the mitigated mile
And ride the wave along the mitigated mile

Well I don't really know anybody in love
I don't want to know anybody in love
