"Fade"

Pardon me but Iâve got to confess
What you see isnât what you get
I canât play these roles anymore
Canât hide myself with you in that comfortable hole
Frankly I find it hard to see
Hiding underneath all these sheets
Am I so used not being me
Iâm starting to wonder where I am
I wonder where I am

Plan my escape from reality, make myself disappear
Come and open up my doors and clean out these fears Canât stay hidden by the light, canât stay living by a lie
Carry me over these walls
Iâm not willing to climb
Climb

My shadowâs cast in the light
But soon it begins to fade out of sight
Donât worry about these tearful eyes
It takes time to adjust to reality
Can we stop this masquerade and take time for being

Sometimes we think weâre so high
We need to fall to see weâre not
And sometimes we have to ask is that really you
If you canât tell whoever will
And when we think weâre alone in this endeavor to be fine
Itâs funny to see weâre all together, together in this line
