Daylight is a killer
Our faces pale, our thoughts turn thinner
We've cried the stars out of the sky
We fought the fog out of our minds
Daylight is a killer

Daylight is a killer
These kind of fights allow no winner
No glory found in spiteful nights
No trophy for the best of lies

Daylight, daylight, daylight, grey light

Sometimes the truth seems scattered, keep it hidden
from me
Light lies feel so much better, spill them out befor me
Teach me the things that matter
Oh and you adore me
Oh and you adore me

I'll inhale the smoke around me
Fix morning moods with random highs
Cure soaring aches with savage rites

Daylight, just a little
Oh how much more left to unriddle
Oh brighter boy, you took time
My solemn smiles, my pleace of mind

Sometimes the truth seems scattered, keep it hidden
from me
Light lies feel so much better, spill them out befor me
Teach me the things that matter
Oh and you adore me
Just like I adore you, I do
