Leave the bureau in the snow catch a tram to 'Oncle Po' early evening ring around the moon slipping by the concierge by the bikes and up the stairs snap the latch and creep in to the room

you throw of your coat
pick up the post put a coffee on you lie down on the bed lay back your head
smoke a cigarette
and listen to the radio listen to the radio

in the city late tonight double feature black and white 'bitter tears' and 'taxi to the Clo' find a bar, avoid a fight show your papers, be polite walking home with nowhere else to go

atmospherics after dark noise and voices from the past accrosse the dial from Mosow to Cologne interference in the night thousand miles on either side stations fading into the unknow

We throw of our coats butter some toast put another coffee on we lie down on the bed

lay back our heads smoke another cigarette
