"The Very Thought Of You"

At the very thought of you a smile surrounds my face
The very thought of you commands my heart to race
And I forget the yesterdays that broke me in two Cause even they couldn't chase off the very thought of you

At just a glance from you my knees begin to weaken
At a glance from you I have a rough time speakin'
Cause I feel a hundred things and say just a few
But each one begins with the very thought of you

And at the thought of you the loneliness is shattered
And I can see what mattered all along
I'm not too sure about too much
Cause people change too fast
But you're in control and in my soul
The memory will always last

Because at the very thought of you the stars applaud above me
And I've dreamed that you might someday choose to love me
Could be just another dream that will never come true
But I won't let go of the very thought of you
No I won't let go of the very thought of you
