what's our mission
do we know
but never listen
for too long
they held me under
but i hear
it's almost over
in detroit
on a memphis train
like you said

it's down in the heat and the summer rain of the automatic gauze of your memories down in the sleep at the airplane races

try to hold on
to this heart
a little bit longer
try to hold on
to this love
aloud
try to hold on
for this heart's
a little bit colder
try to hold on
to this love

paperback scrawl your hidden poem written around the dried out flowers here we are still trading places to try to hold on

can you envision
a free world
of clear division
they held us under
but i know
we're getting over

with the nashville tears

it's down in the heat with the broken numbers down in the gaze of solemnity down in the way you held together

a little bit closer
try to hold on
a little bit older

and we are still alive
and no one should deny
we try to hold on to the pulse of a feedback current into the flow of the cryptic movement slapback kills the ancient remnants that try to hold on

alive
to this love
try to hold on
pop tart
you never listen
skinned knees
stop start
