

New York Rel-X, The "No Fears" deep down what's there left to say about the dysfunction that you portray it's a laugh now all the misery that's like your crown but to everyone around you, your still just insane there's no corner that's kept hiding from the lies that you keep no followers here

that would join in your dreams

just your empty plead

now the world seems locked in aggravation and war just seems to mode of life/it's our education an afterthought/destruction is a vision that we hide why not blow another life away with our pride what will we get when war is done a world now raised on fears i may be just a fool but i won't drown my life with tears countless days i just feel numb you were wasted time and wasted fun and now you're a fatality of our past until the day you finally have the balls to be one

that would join in your dreams

and now your a fatality of our stupid past an empty space, a broken heart i know is healing fast and every scar you've given me don't think will ever last!
