you came around wearing something like a crown acting like I should be folding at your knees you came around yeah
just floating on some cloud leaving nothing out for none to guess about you and everything you said that day I still got it dripping dripping dripping off my skin
yes everything you said that day still got it dripping dripping dripping off my skin

and I guess I guess it doesn't matter much more now now that you've become what you've become better just stay behind but now there's something that keeps running through my head

and it's more
more than you will ever get to be more than you will ever get to be

and the sun was screaming in my face and I had this feeling like i was never gonna win and everywhere your eyes would stare they would settle down all over me like death and I swore I'd never let you through well I'm sticking to it whatever it is i said
'cause everything you said that day I still have it dripping dripping dripping off my skin one day you can tell them all that you came here to stop believing what you do and now there's something that keeps running through

so stop stop let it drop it's gonna make you disappear
