The Strawberry Girl

Dead leaf falliing from a family tree. Drop in the ocean.
Rock in the sea
In a long cold winter. She's falling asleep on a pillow of feathers
Wool of sheep

China moon on a cold winter night
When she's sleeping, the light is milk on her pillow Gold-fish is swimming around in a bowl near the window

The curtain is moving slow. The wind is blowing Strawberry girl takes me to her kitchen Am I fish or bait

Paper straw in her soft skin. Sip her lemonade Koala faces, thick grey fur. Pieces of snake skin.
Millefleurs
In a long cold winter she's waking up on a pillow of feathers
Wool of sheep

Strawberry girl takes me to the river. We sit down in the breeze Goose-flesh when she starts to shiver Cover her with wool and listen to the wind in the leaves of a tree

She tells me she leaves me. I don't know where I am going I'm just a black sheep. A falling leaf. A falling leaf from a family tree
