I have seen you before, you're a master of disguise
It must be you I can tell, by the look in your eyes
You should listen to me before you walk out of the door
I won't surrender, I don't wanna see you no more

Tell me I'm wrong, you're in my heart just the same
Where have you gone, will I remember your name?

Distant voices unspoken words in my head
You have no choices...the things that you've done and you've said
Tonight I will fight to make everything right
No one will stand in my way
Distant Voices calling your name
Over and over again

Take my advise and go back to where you came Cus I've had enough of the tears and pain
I have told you before now, I know you misunderstood
But you don't remember and now that you're going for good

I can't go on, tell me that I'm only dreaming
Since you've been gone, will I remember your name?

Distant voices unspoken words in my head
You have no choices...the things that you've done and you've said
Tonight I will fight to make everything right
No one will stand in my way
Distant Voices calling your name
Over and over again

Distant voices unspoken words in my head
You have no choices...the things that
you've done and you've said
Maybe someday I will see you again, somewhere someplace in time
No one will stand in my way
Distant Voices calling your name
Over and over again
