A flaunted waste,
a dirty taste,
in your mouth.
You can't find your place,
and you're in good grace,
with doubt.
There's no other way,
and this is the day,
you'll break out.

And stars will fall, worlds will collide,
there's no more time to stall,
If you fall short, don't be scared,
don't use a last resort, someone will be there.

Get down to business, when you need forgiveness, even if no one's around.
Remember you can win this,
you can't give into stress, or you'll fall to the ground.
Don't lose yourself to sickness, just have a heart to witness, and you'll be found.

And with this, say goodbye to the hardships, and the pain, the dread of love, the fear of joy, and all of the blame.
And stars will fall, worlds will collide,
there's no more time to stall,
If you fall short, don't be scared,
don't use a last resort, Because stars will fall, worlds will collide,
there's no more time to stall,
If you fall short, don't be scared,
don't use a last resort, someone will be there.
