This is a story of a boy who believed That whatever he dreamed he could grow to achieve But never in his live did he dream he could be An inspiration to those that came before heâ€¦ [chorus] Hey, hey, alright (8x) [Verse 1] Once upon a time, before beats and the rhymes And before there was ever any Random There was a boy in the hood, who always did good So the bullies of the block couldn't stand him And on Christmas and birthdays he got mad presents so many, he ain't know what to play with He had Transformers, He-Man, Ninja Turtles, Star wars But the G.I. Joes were his favorite He was so creative, that if they didn't make a toy he like Decided to create it He put Storm Shadow's legs on Snake Eyes' body till it popped And then he duct taped it, he made spaceships while the big kids hung out on the block playing hide and seek And riding back They used to try to get involved but they told him "get lost" And that's when they started gettin' high at night Then I heard a made a friend who was as nerdy as him When he had all that he could withstand they collected comics and cards, studied knew the whole Star Wars script like the back of his hand And in school he made A's and B's And teachers complemented his amazing feats And all the while he wondered, If I'm so amazing, geez How come nobody won't play with me? [Chorus] [Verse 2] So to say this kid looked funny in school That would be a colossal understatement He had high water pants, coke bottle frames And a mouth full of orthodontic braces First girlfriend was named Christina Perez He took her everywhere, now the boy's so cool But she dated him on a dare And left him standing there without a clue Man kids can be so cruel Just when people couldn't like the boy any less Around the same time shorty got an N.E.S. Cause his mom felt this was the best way to keep him out the streets Although they was penniless Only child, so she didn't want an empty nest And it's a healthier addiction than cigarettes And so it began, how did he escape this scene? He sat in front of that screen, and chased his dreams. [Chorus] [Verse 3] Fast forward a couple years, he gained a couple peers And sucked up game like a vacuum Went off to college and sought some knowledge And developed the heart to make rap tunes Vowed to stay true when he dropped his debut And did, so this got his little name up And it was money in the bank, but money drew a blank Every time the second LP came up So he thought back to childhood And how he survived in such a wild hood Then he realized, they didn't hate him And whatever didn't break him, that's what made him So he decided to combine his love for the games and raps Open his soul up and let 'em in Then he chopped up some 8 bit sounds, put it down Now Random is now known as Mega Ran Now his name's all over that internet Girls who didn't care are now interested And the best part of the story, comes at the end But that part hasn't been written yet
