This was the end of the line
This was as far as it goes
This was a heart in decline
Then I met you
I had my life all mapped out
You were the same I suppose
Suddenly over my dark
And I turned to you

It's not hard to live a lie
Disregard and deny
What you want and what is real and true
Waiting for something
And I long for the truth
And it's you

I can get used to my heart
Happy and free running wild
Tearing my old life apart
Over you, oh for you I was waiting
For something unknown
Lost in myself like a child
Counting on being alone
But our love broke through

I was wrong to close the door
For so long just because
You have shown how a world can change
Waiting for something
Waiting for something

It's not hard to live a life
Disregard and deny
What you want and what is real
And I long for the truth
And I long to be free
Free with you
And I do love you
All along waiting just for you
