The other woman is the only one who could know how it goes
Half of his heart is the part that will keep her alone

I never thought no, I never thought I'd become her
I did believe, though, thought I might have something far better

The other woman is she who knows how bad it feels Never enough but it's tough to retract all your love, yeaaaah!

The other woman don't get no more than a state of hurt
She's me in her trying to be fine in a state of hurt

Carry this burden it's like you and me are the same, in a way
Nothing was changed, it remains that we wanted him to be there!

I never thought, no I never thought I'd become you
I never thought no I never thought I'd be the other

I gave it my heart, I gave it my soul, hardly had anything of my own
