how could i fall for someone so superficial funny how the things that you can never have needle you more tired of standing in the rain praying for sunshine again

i remember your eyes

wish i could see through them

how could i fall

if i could

our love was like the wind we blew it away

tired of dealing with your games praying i'll never need you again

we could have loved so much why didn't we try make it right would it have been enough
