

Only Seven Left "Silhouettes"

Visit "Silhouettes" on MotoLyrics.com

I had a hole in my bed. It felt cold, black and dead.
A perfect case of missing pieces in the puzzle of your life.
I left 'cause it felt bad, went outside,
the sun still red and suddenly I felt that sunset is so much more than just a sight.
Sang it before but I never meant it.
Knew there was more but I never felt it.
But who can blame you
When a ride through love street is just a race with you on the backseat?
There was no reason to stand back.
I made my move and took the step on a road into the mountains,
a cycling path with ups and downs.
Now there is a glow underneath these white sheets.
There was a gap and we fixed it.
You'll wake me when the sun shines through in a room
that we both knew.
The sails are set to miss the iceberg when we pass,
floating into silhouettes of epic quests.

Visit Only Seven Left page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.