Hard sixteen

Daddy didn't care, Mama wasn't there Jenny slammed the door to her heart Packed a suitcase of anger, no one tried to save her She headed for the city that shines in the dark But the lights fade away, when you're young on the streets without a friend Jenny learned to survive, put a price on the nights that never end

She's hard sixteen, soft to the touch, but she's seen too much
She's hard sixteen, will soul run dry by seventeen?

The face of innocence doesn't stand a chance Between the losers, the takers, the lost
So Jenny never cried, locked her pain inside She's trapped in a time bomb, ready to blow
There will come a day when the mirror reveals a total stranger
Another lonely runaway in a living hell

She's turning hard sixteen, soft to the touch, but she's seen too much She's hard sixteen, will her soul run dry?

Jenny, please come home (Please come home)
You've got so much to give, so much life to live, so come home

She's hard sixteen, soft to the touch, but she's seen too
much
She's hard sixteen, will her soul run dry?, Sixteen

Hard sixteen, soft to the touch, but she's seen too
much
Hard sixteen, will her soul run dry?
Hard sixteen, her Daddy didn't care, her Mama wasn't there

Hard sixteen, will her soul run dry?
Hard sixteen, soft to the touch, but she's seen too
much
Hard sixteen, will her soul run dry by seventeen?
