Shotgun wedding

I see soldiers
patrolling in front of the palace wearing heavy boots
to tread down buds of freedom.
I see your children
starving in dirty streets
and men slaughtering them.
TheyÃf'Ã, 're paid by the government.

This is a shotgun wedding,
come on join it.

I see politicians
gathering around a table.
TheyÃf'Ã, 're discussing the split of your land.
I see them drinking red wine and preaching hypocritical honey.
I know they donÃf'Ã, 't care about you:
they care about your money.

This is a shotgun wedding,
come on join it.

I see a revolution
sweeping over your land and youÃf'Ã, 're kicking against their vile faces.
I see you losing the fight:
thousands are dead or wounded.
Once you declared your war
but now they sow the horror.

This is a shotgun wedding,
come on join it.
