Does your brain humm and buzz at night
With things that you have done
And things you haven't done fall ontop of you
And mulling over friends of old
And lovers who are gone
Exactly what went wrong
Well, I do
And all those coward acts and lies
All the guilt returns when I close my eyes
And all those times that I made someone cry
But you have done far worse than I
To hide the guilt with a plastic smile
I wonder, how do you sleep at night?

Hearts you've broken with such ease
And lives that you have grabbed
And backs that you have stabbed
...take time to heal

It's sickening and heartbreaking
The cruel things I've done
In the name of fun
Well, I'm sorry

And all those coward acts and lies
All the guilt returns when I close my eyes
And all those times that I made someone cry
But you have done far worse than I
To hide the guilt with a plastic smile
I wonder, how do you sleep at night?

And all those coward acts and lies
All the guilt returns when I close my eyes
And all those times that I made someone cry
But you have done far worse than I
To hide the guilt with a plastic smile
I wonder, how do you sleep at night?
Oh, I wonder, how do you sleep at night?
