Your position is your own story
Smug in you chair
Your life steeped in glory
And while you crave the admiration
Of the world and his wife
You'll be claimin', "All I'm tryin to do
Is get some comfort in my life"

Well, you crave respect
From all the people
That you meet in the street
And who think you're so feeble
Well, you'll deny the truth
You'll say your age is your right
Well exclaimin', "I'll I'm tryin to do
Is get some comfort in my life"

Well, there is more to your tears
Than just wasted years
There's dancing fright
That you can't deal with inside
But I feel there's no obligation
To respect your station
When you use your stumblin' walk
To cover your faults

But you don't hear the truth
You'll say you're treated bad
We'll be made into devils
And told that were mad
And we'll contend with your evils
And we'll content with your strife
And you'll claim, "All I'm tryin to do
Is get some comfort in my life"

So I remove my feeling
And I forfeit my duties
You'd have me dance around fires
Screamin', "Hypocrites! Liars!"
But my mind is my head
And it's not painted red

And I cry as the dead
Anyway I am led

And as the leaves flutter down
And fall on the ground
And the seasons have ended without a sound
And they pay their respects
And they pronounce the rights
You'll still claim, "All I'm tryin to do
Is get some comfort in my life"

All I'm tryin to do
Is get some comfort in my life (Repeat)
