Come on quietly we're out the window, mom and dad are soundly asleep no cold feet, don't change you're mind don't back out now, it will be so much fun just wait and see" We're not even old enough to drive this brand new car we're sure to have a horrible accident before we get very far you say "don't start in with that tone of voice you sound just like mom don't worry, you worry too much you're so uptight" All the while with your big dumb smile not a hint of worry on your face with every dare I grow more scared and you haven't done a thing to change my mind We pushed the car to reckless speeds windows down, I could barely see now engine off we roll into the driveway so quietly back through the window, wide eyed, so awake I can't believe we pulled that off I feel so alive, slowly, I change All the while with your big dumb smile not a hint of worry on your face with every dare I grow more scared and you haven't done a thing to change my mind All the while with your big dumb smile not a hint of worry on you
