"Confess"

I hit the dirt to begin
Our story had hardly begun
Before I even got my turn
I had been outdone
There was a moment there
I gave in and I lost my share
Buried it inside
Threw it back without a care
Now what have I come home to
And what good could I ever do
I am not the first or the final one
To break the rules
Though I gave it all
I don't know what for
I have nothing at all to confess

Some boys they throw their hands
Some make unfair demands
Some see the science
And they deny to the end
Now why have I come home
And what have I come home to
Why have I come home
Just to break the rule
Though I gave it all
I don't know what for
I have nothing at all to confess
