You've been chasing me forever
Closing in as the days grow longer
And this could be my fault
Slowly grab a hold
To try and find what really matters

You've been watching me
Like the moon watches the sky
Pushing me to find
You open doors, you open doors
It's hard to make believe
When the sun slips out of view
And I don't care what they say
I'm in love with you, so in love with you

I've been judging books by their covers
You brought the color back into my eyes
I'm ready to change, progress's made now
But what will they say when they find I'm in love with you?

You've been watching me
Like the moon watches the sky
Pushing me to find
You open doors, you open doors
It's hard to make believe
When the sun slips out of view
And I don't care what they say
I'm in love with you, so in love with you

There's choices to make with so much at stake, and how will I know?
Push reason aside, I will find you

And you've been watching me
Like the moon watches the sky
Pushing me to find
You open doors, you open doors
It's hard to make believe
I love you
And I don't care what they say

I'm in love with you, so in love with you
