Well, I'm going away to leave you
And I'm gone for a while
But I'll come back to you someday
When I've gone ten thousand miles

Where the storms are on the ocean
And the heavens will cease to be
And this world may lose its motion
If you don't come back to me

When I left you in whiskey valley
With the crimes upon your face
And the storms were in the deep part
In the deepest, darkest plain

Where the storms are on the ocean
And the heavens will cease to be
And this world may lose its motion
If you don't come back to me
