What do I have to do to get these thoughts out of my head

They're racing around like a turbine engine
Who made the rule to make these thoughts so intangible

Strangle them with my hands full
I always thought that when I got out of high school
That I would be the one to change all of the rules
Taught myself to perform the impossible
If only I could change the world

World, gotta' change the world
Before we make it any worse
I'll start off with one city first
One person where it hurts
Then I could change the world
Change the world

What if the world we know is black and white with no color
We're going through the motion over and over
Car, the suit, the job, the rent, parking ticket, picket fence
Dreams dressed undercover
Wouldn't trade with another person playing hide and seek Without any other
Looking for their life try to bring it back to earth
I think I'm gonna' change the world

World, gotta' change the world
Before we make it any worse
I'll start off with one city first
One person where it hurts
Then I could change the world
Change the world
