This army of inspiration we came for our revenge we'll raise the flag of discontent, we know who we are and where we stand, i know words can't change the world but they can have an impact on life through some words that someone else wrote i found hope, and hope is all we have.
why sing another empty anthem?
when you know this world needs direction.
hope is all we have. the hollow words you say we both know they mean nothing we know that your heart is hollow we know that your words are shallow but those words are all we have.
