We indulge in lust while our city burns to the ground.
As the heavens open we step forth through the flames.
Pour out your sight upon me.
Strip my heart from me and leave me bare so I may live
free from the very lie that hinders me.
I give my all to you.
You've saved me from my pain.
I'll hold true and ever fall away.
As the flood washes over me, I'll survive and follow
you.
Come take this pride from me, lead me into a place of rest.
The only ting I ask of you is that you hold me close.
The time has come for us to rise and bring a nation to their knees.
Our suffering is at its end and now it's time for us to stand.
Create in us a barren wasteland filled with flames of burning pride.
From the ashes we will rise against the prophets of staggered lies.
I now see why we must fight for our lives.
The earth will shake as the legions prepare.
This army is thicker than blood.
Stand as a warrior against our darkest fate.
We'll put an end to pride.
Our mere sight will cause the dead to rise.
