in our apartment house we're as quiet as we've ever been down the hallway a girl with honey eyes has moved in when we walked by she just smiled but there and then I realized I could drift so far from you and when you're standing by my side just like you said don't want to lose before I've tried maybe we can remember all the things we planned where we began and when the words come let's clear the strip and let 'em land while we still can my old man has brought half a dozen wives into the world I met him last year after twenty years or so with no words what a strange look in his eye-I thought he knew just what it's like to walk out out out of the blue leave behind him every trace of those he knew he made me see all I could lose with you maybe we can remember all the things we planned but I wandered through the weeds slept in the satin sheets got wasted in the heat but I can't dream of how I'd feel if you'd forgotten me lost me in the leaves maybe we can remember all the things we planned where we began and when the words come let's clear the strip and let 'em land while we still can a girl with honey eyes has moved in I remember I was walking with you
