The pressure builds up all year long but i'll try and stick it out just one more day

my teachers and my parents they never let up - they're always on my case
just one more day

the homework i get sometimes is way too much so i'll copy off my friends
just one more day

the friends i've made - i'll never forget when i need help - they push me on
just one more day

i open my eyes to another day i know what's ahead and i want to stay in bed i haven't studied for my test and all my homework is a mess
back to school again

down by the lockers at lunch time that's where we'll be my friends and i planning our weekends - hooking up dates till the lunch bell rings then we know it's back to school again the things i learn in my school math, science, and all the rules seem stupid now - but i'll get good grades instead of blowing my summer away

you - must never give up you - must always push on you - must have the will to succeed you - must not fall victim to the dropout disease i've made it through another day kept out of determination - and that's okay i wonder what tomorrow will bring will i cut school or bring my homework in no one believes in me i have faith in myself now i know i can do it

no problem.
