They say that all your lights were burning they found your doors and windows locked they found a note on the kitchen table and they found a bullet in your heart Well you said that you had reached the breaking point and you took your phone off the hook then your wife and family were summoned but they were afraid and she was ashamed to look

Dear Michael -- is it really over?
Dear Michael -- is that all you're worth?
Dear Michael -- is that what you wanted?
Dear Michael -- the last is always first

I guess there's a skeleton in every closet there's hardly room to hang your coat and there's always some dirt under the carpet we sweep it there and hope that it don't show
And I see a lot of nervous smiles on a lot of nervous faces and I've heard some awful lies have been told and sometimes I wonder should I tell them all
'cause they don't know the things that I know

Dear Michael -- is it really over?
Dear Michael -- is that all you're worth?
Dear Michael -- is that what you wanted?
Dear Michael -- the last is always first

Dear Michael is it really over?
