Radiant lucifer
oh phosphorous divine who outshine all the stars in the heavens and beyond thou who art fallen and risen in the deelys in the gleaming halls of darkness and forbidden mysteries by your vigour and by your emerald phantasm illuminated and in awe I stand to curse all of the world reborn beneath the black sun on my knees for none but thee whose flames ignite the heavens and scorch them throughly

Rising from the deeps Urkaus hovering in doom black sun of dissolving fire by whose wrath the self of god shall die bursting from it's roaring surface shining from the serpent's eye the boundless light that burns the sun the fire of the fallen one

God of death primordial flame of the unknown mould me heart into a vessel and possess it as your own make my torch into a furnace so that I can see the secrets clear holy, radiant, silent a light so strong it bears the wrath of a god

Rise!
oh, Promethean serpent of the underworld ascend unto the highest above the very thrones breath unto the embers that dwell within my heart for within them lies the key to it's perditionate reincarnation

Awaken from it's restless slumber my diamond, unbound to reign as I walk beyond the grace of god into the roaring deeps arcane my eyes they burn as I behold the wings of lucifer unfold transcending now into formation to burn the sun and all creation
