The Crash Of Angel Wings

Here she comes
like rumbling drums
swinging her skirts
and talking in spurts sailing high in her ship of the sky
being found broken on the ground
but when she sings
I hear the crash of angel wings
When she sings I hear the crash of wings
On Sundays she walks on cut glass and rocks
On Monday she falls
from the sheerest of walls
On Tuesday she screams black words in her dreams
On Friday she lies and a part of her dies
but when she sings
I hear the crash of angel wings
When she sings I hear the crash of wings
Here she comes
like rumbling drums
She's swinging her skirts
She's talking in spurts
Now she's reading my books Now she's giving me looks as she slips and sways through murmuring days

and when she sings
I hear the crash of angel wings
When she sings
I hear the crash of angel wings
When she sings I hear the crash of wings
Here she comes
like rumbling drums
Here she comes
like rumbling drums

like rumbling drums
like rumbling drums
