If winters could kill and this was the one
That drove you screaming right back to where you belong
Oh right into my arms

So what if the world shut up today
A ball of confusion flying wild in the sky
Oh with you by my side

But summer will come won't burn our skin
Under the rays that remind what it is to be young
But don't the lovers have all the fun

And I'll praise the angel that will make it alright

I sent you a rose electrically wired
When things burn this brightly don't let them explode
It's not part of the show

I'll rest near your fire and worried brown eyes
There's no closer to heaven oh than to shine in your lies

And I'll praise the angel that we'll all be alright
'Cos we all got something and we all shine on
When we all got someone we can sing about

If winters could kill and this was the one
That drove you screaming right back to where you
belong
Oh right into my arms

And I'll praise the angel that will make it alright
