the sun has set for us and the candle folds to empty space impaled intentions leave me struggling for consistency to you i have confessed, there's nothing left to say so put that tear to rest and let things go this way the record spins its way again and moments passed drag their way back to center stage and then i realize, through these tired eyes now you're far away was time just put to waste? if i could light the way, you'd be the one to stay come closer and feel me breathe with you come closer and crash your parts with mine i know the distance lost, it echoed back by steady walls as close as we did seem, i felt you never knew me
