

Webb Wilder

"The Olde Elephant Man"

Visit "The Olde Elephant Man" on MotoLyrics.com

He be came the toast of old London town
Because a pachyderm slapped his momma down
Well that's what give him the brand
Of the ole elephant man

Oh, Lord, how could you be so cold
To dump all those blues on one poor soul
Tell me Lord could you stand
To be the elephant man

He took a lick from the ugly stick
He made the people of London sick
He had the looks that could fry a toad
Make a train take a gravel road

Well it became the rage of Victorian society
To have a monster come over to your house for a cup of tea
Hell old Hank Lordenbaughmen
Didn't look like you and me

He took a lick from the ugly stick
He made the people of London sick
He had the looks that could fry a toad
Make a train take a gravel road

He be came the toast of old London town
Because a pachyderm slapped his momma down
Well that's what give him the brand
Of the ole elephant man

Tell Me Lord could you stand
To be the elephant man
The old elephant man

Visit Webb Wilder page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.