"Counting The Hours"

I count the hours that won4t go by I smell the flowers beneath the road
All these colours fade like the blue sky it4s all strangling my throat Time has brought changes has made us departed has torn our arranges Left us broken hearted time has brought changes now nothing is fitting Are we still one or are you just kidding

Now that you4ve gone nothing seems to come Nothing seems to work out like it used to be
Now that you4ve gone nothing seems to come
Nohing seems to work out now that you4ve gone

All of your beauty and all your tenderness will agonize me forever
I4m sure I won4t forget all this pleasure and all we ever had Will stay a sad inscription in my head

Now that you4ve gone nothing seems to come
Nothing seems to work out like it used to be
Now that you4ve gone nothing seems to come
Nohing seems to work out now that you4ve gone

We were so young when we were sitting on your parent4s balkony Watching the stars we thought your4s and mine would stay forever up above
And now it seems they have crashed into the sea

Now that you4ve gone nothing seems to come
Nothing seems to work out like it used to be
Now that you4ve gone nothing seems to come
Nohing seems to work out now that you4ve gone
