Driving through this dark and empty land searching for myself

The road is long the night so cold and I've got a long way to go

Looking for an unknown golden age hiding from the past

The mountains in the distance seem so far away like giants in a fairy tale world

On a bridge between black and white

Across the border, across the borderline tonight

Across the border, across the borderline tonight

Cover me with gentle promises

Your eyes show me the way

Trust in what will come straight into the night

Knowing by now I can't go wrong

On a bridge between black and white

On a bridge between the shadows and the light

Across the border, across the borderline tonight

Across the border, across the borderline tonight

Across the border, across the borderline tonight

Across the border, across the borderline tonight

Across the borderonight

Across the border, across the borderline tonight
