On the corner every night
Lost and worried
Calling two names of people she has known
Where did they go
And she's always alone
She wonders if the names remember her

She's the girl that no one could recognize
That no one could identify
Cause no one had heard anything
From anyone who knows anything about her
There's no one to recognize
And no one to identify
The people in her life
Are just people in her mind

On the sidewalk late at night
Candlelight
Writing down names of people she has known
So many names
And she sits there alone
Wonders if they still remember her

She's the girl that no one could recognize
That no one could identify
Cause no one had heard anything
From anyone who knows anything about her
There's no one to recognize
And no one to identify
The people in her life
Are just people in her mind
