We decree a rewrite

We're killing time

We just wanna be together day and night

Early in the morning, the start of summertime and we both forgot to set the clock, waking up an hour late

He turned to me and said "Would it be a crime, if we stayed in bed

instead ... we could play all day - so we'd lose an hour - we could gain a whole lifetime if we let the world just carry on without us..."

Take it on up. Send it right on down.

Now we're free from everything just killing time.

Take it on up, send it right on down.

Now we're free from everything just killing time.

On the radio they say we've got an extra hour of light tonight -

I wanna lay right here with you ... let the world run on,

'ause the just don't know how to live life right -

No limit to the sky

all the chains of time are only living in your mind

Oh, let it go
