Once upon a time was how it once began there isn't any time to tell it once again but i will start the tale and you can find its end Once upon a time in a world not far away lived a child who couldn't deal with reality and this child slipped into his own reality Once upon a time whence lady tried to rescue him he spoke to her a little but soon slipped further in and in time she would follow - in time she joined him...

She asked the child what he feared and the child replied he could fear nothing in his own fashion he'd dealt with it all and she found this very compelling she left him alone to his folly but soon she would return

When next she saw the fargone child she asked him what his world was for and he replied in a musing tone
"My world is a place where i am never alone"
"For there are so many like me, not alone anymore"

And she watched as once again he left her alone but someone there with her and she would choose to join him if she could choose a way but as he left her she saw it must be over her decision unmade she would leave him once again
