I sing the stories of my life, all my songs you hear sometimes the chords or words may deceive your ear you look upon my miseries with your blinded eyes ere i explain the meanings of you laugh at my disguise

If i can clothe the demons in a riddle with a smile it helps to mask the burdens of telling them a while and as long as no one knows me or the troubles i have faced then i dont have to worry bout my sanity encased

And you dont know i sing this to you when i'm writing it all down i deceive my own deception and i giggle and i frown fancy words are flowing and the meanings lost behind looking for the answer that you know you'll never find

A second chance with another stance a riddle to cloak my pains another try to deceive your eye a riddle in serenade soon you'll see thru to me no riddles in the way
