I used to be what we call single I excelled at the late night love talk
If you don't have to mean what you say I could say a lot.
If I didn't have to account, I could count you all the ways
If I could already see where it was going I could always say I'd stay

I used to have what we call all the options a lot of who-knows and maybe-next-times what could not tie me down, I could hold that line If I didn't have to really come through,
I could be there whenever they need I could drive all night, they could rest on my shoulder when it's over I could always leave

Its the always, the forevers they comfort and then they'll haunt you with the late night love talk hoping someone will want you

I used to think I could live my life swept off my feet now there are promises I don't make there are private things I keep Like just how I would go on, if you and I could not I used to be what I called single I know the late night love talk
