i came home wanting love to conquer all but the past still painted every wall i came with love, i came with kind i always forget what i always find
i came home, why does the dark close in here's the sullen face, the frightened child again she came for the glass of milk, the ball of yarn, the fire hearth, not the fire alarm
i came home, my heart wants to yield it's the rest of me brings this sword and this shield i wanted a hug in the kitchen light to be folded in, not to fight
i come home in spite of it all
cause nobody's perfect at home sweet home love gets lost in sticks and stones where is it written those that hold you close are the ones who can hurt you most
