I want to be back in Sofkuri's room
Where the candlelight's timeless
She sits on the corner of her bed looking at you
Through eyes part coal and part diamond
And I long to feel Sofkuri move
Smooth like a stream in the forest
'Cause I feel stiff like the city in heat
May the road be burning before us
She's sticking to me like the salt from the sea
Sleeping on the shore
In my winter coat pocket, I found a key to her door
It said, "I'll love you more"
And I swear I felt Sofkuri's soul
Climb into mine
And hide it inside a glass of red wine
And sing to me
Mystery is everything
Mystery is everything
Mystery is everything
Mystery is everything
She's sticking to me like the salt from the sea

Sleeping on the shore

In my winter coat pocket I found a key to her door

It said, "I'll love you more, you more, you more"
