Another round of one on one It's never time it's not the place. You made your mind up; I made comments meaningless Out in the hall I heard you sighing. You held every breath you felt every chain Hoping for a feeling but the feeling never came. You held every breath you felt every chain Searching for a reason, but the reason never came. Do you remember when you said? That there was nothing you would change? What better feeling and you want it all the time What better feeling and you want it What I wanted, what you needed found the two were not related I waste my time, write these lines, wait for something you can't find The feeling's all but gone but still remains tonight. A close encounter on the stair Echoes of laughter in the hall What better feeling and you want it all the time, What better feeling and you want it What I wanted, what you needed found the two were not related I waste my time, write these lines, wait for something you can't find The feeling's all but gone but still remains tonight.
