When I wake up my head still feels heavy Cluttered up from the dreams the night before I was lost at sea one thousand days with a bottle and a broken compass I had lost the will to live until I woke on a strange and distant shore.
But I was only dreaming the troubled signs of a mind that's I'll at ease I've been lost and found then I turned around took the trouble just to see what's going down Wait awhile and the world will change or it changes you I'm not sure which and Scars may never fade, but strength is
The heart to let them show with courage
And just before I break, in darkness
A spark begins to glow.
So when you're fortunes stall if you start to fall Taking comfort that your back's against the wall.
Wait awhile and the world will change
If there's one thing that I've found that's true it's Scars may never fade, but strength is
The heart to let them show with courage
And just before I break, in darkness
A flame begins to grow Destruction, birth in fantasy I'm dreaming of the life I seek I'm changing the things I can control Scars may never fade, but strength is
The heart to let them show with courage
And just before I break, in darkness
a spark begins to glow.
Begins to grow.
