Standin' in the window as the rain comes crashin' down
I think about the last time that we are were hangin' round
The "Trojans" won another game, we all ran down the hill
Nothin' could ever stop us, I said, "Nothin' ever will"

Some things will always be, never the same

Ricky had a cigarette and Billy got the keg We all drove down the party roads with music in our heads
We never got in accidents, we always made it there We talked about how hot we got last summer at the fair...fair.

Some things will always be, never the same

But then one day the Earth stood still, our loss was very clear
No one saw it comin' and everybody cared.
Do you know where Billy is, I heard he was O.K.
But what about your father, is it true what they say, say.

Some things will always be, never the same

So if I have a daydream and find I've lost my way
I just crank up that radio and live another day

So when I light this cigarette and pour myself a beer
And listen to the rain come down and act like no one's here
I hope that you will understand, I've tried to make it clear...clear.

Some things will always be never the same
Never the same
