I was there for you
Although it never mattered.
'Cause whatever I'd do
I was still left battered and broken.
You're nothing more. A metaphore for me to guess and wonder.

So you're gone
and this city is vacant
Just like me, just like me.

Just another year alone
shivering in blankets
where's my promise dear:
"I swear I won't go"?
I ask because I know you'll never make it.
I close my eyes, no tears will fall
From these lids I've shut tight.

So you're gone
and this city is vacant
Just like me, just like me.
I know what you'll say...
"I miss you more than anything.
The thought of you goes on and on..."

So you're gone now
and this city is vacant
Just like me, just like me.
