Did I sit alone and ask about my future?
When you replied I just turned away
I've been searching through my books to try and find some truth
Perhaps disguised as a mysterious way

And if I made a promise Could I stay by your side?
Would you guarantee my safety
And say that I'd be all right?

But if Judgment Day started tonight at least I'd know I was right
And I'd be laughing at the end of the world
Take my hand tonight I'll think we'll be alright, girl

And I can see it on the TV, there's an air attack
People of the mountains screaming I'll be back
And I'm banging on your door so come on and let me in Need a place to hide, I need a place to hide before the storm begins

If I told you all the times when I'd done wrong
Could you bathe my soul and wash it all away?
I can't forgive the things that I can still remember
So I think my friendly sins are here to stay

And I could make a promise with a tear in my eye
And all the hope in my heart
But all the doubt in my mind

And if Judgment Day started tonight at least I'd know I
was right
And I'd be laughing at the end of the world
Take my hand tonight I think we'll be alright, girl

And I can see it on the TV, there's an air attack
People on the mountains screaming I'll be back
And I'm banging on your door so come on and let me in Need a place to hide, I need a place to hide before the
storm begins

Before the storm begins, before the storm begins

Before the storm begins
I need a place to hide before the storm begins
