There's a monkey on your back and its hungry

Hungry for another shot

You reach for the hypodermic needle

Is it there? No it's not

The monkey on your back is jumping

Scratching and biting your neck

It forces you to want that fix

Makes you feel like a total wreck

You're going cold turkey you know you're gonna shake

You're going cold turkey, you know you're gonna sweat

Till it feels like you're drowning

You're reliving a nightmare awake

You're going cold turkey

You know, you're gonna sweat and shake

The worst part is over,

But withdrawal's yet to come

The fits of vomiting are dying down

But the days seem so long

The monkey is getting weaker

But still its waiting to get fed

You gotta shrug that monkey off your shoulder

Then the addiction, will be dead

Youã,ã,'re going cold turkey you know youã,ã,'re gonna shake

Youã,ã,'re going cold turkey, you know youã,ã,'re gonna sweat

Till it feels like youã,ã,'re drowning

Youã,ã,'re reliving a nightmare awake

Youã,ã,'re going cold turkey

You know, youã,ã,'re gonna sweat and shake

The shaking is now over, and the sweat is drying out

But the memory still lingers, in your mind there is some doubt

Another few days of isolation, another few hours of consultation

Then the monkey on your back will drop

The addiction, it will stop
